PRESENTATION TO CHIEF ENGINEER HILL. The Cleveland Firemen assembled last night a the Melodeon, to witness the presentation of massive silver trumpet to Chief Engineer Hill, as testimonial of their regard and confidence. A more manly and noble assemblage of men is seldon seen, than was there convened, and could those who, after the Tournament, applied to the Fire Department of this city epithets and slanders, have been present there, they would have found occasion to change their notes to those of praise. The trumpet which was presented was of solid silver, elegantly chased and engraved, encircled with two gold bands, and lined with gold. It is about two eet in hight, weighs four pounds, and is valued at $200. Upon it is the following inscription : " Presented to Chief Engineer James Hill by the Fire Department of Cleveland, O., 1858." Upon the bowl are cleven shields, upon which are engraved the names of the present fire companies, while upon a twelfth is an engine. The trumpet was designed and manufactured by Messrs. Benton & Mathivet, whose skill and taste in such matters have heretofore been well proved. The foremen and engineers of the various com panies sat upon the stage, together with several nembers of the Board of Underwriters, as invited guesis. Mr. Hill was introduced by Mr. John Frazec, the President of the Firemen's Relief Association. Dr. F. W. Marseilles, the President of the Firemen's General Association, then presented the trumpet, with the following speech : trumpet, with the following speech:

CHIEF ENGINERS HILL—I have been deputed by the Fire Department of the City of Cleveland, to present to you this Trumpet as a testimonial to your worth as Chief Engineer, and a token of the friendly regard entertained toward you by the entire Department. Before doing so it may not be inappropriate to refer to the condition of the Department since the commencement of your labors as its chief officer. The annexation of Ohio Citic added two to the number of our comas its chief officer. The annexation of Ohio City added two to the number of our companies, making the Department to consist of eleven companies with seven hundred men when you were elected to the responsible post of Chief Engineer. We all know that you have been indefatigable in your efforts to introduce all needed reforms into the Department, and that your labors have been crowned with an unusual degree of success, until at this time Cleveland boasts of one of the best organized, best disciplined, and most of the best organized, best disciplined, and most efficient Firs Departments to be found in the country. It is true you have had the aid and cooperation of your associates and subordinates in carrying forward the good work, but they all cheerfully unite in attributing to your unwearied, well directed efforts, a great share of the benefits which have resulted.

Your firmness and activity in enforcing the rules and regulations have successfully checked a spirit of insubordination, whenever it has been manifested. For this you are cutified to the thanks of ev-

We will explain a follows.

Mr. Hill replied as follows:-GENTLEMEN:-I feel my incompetency to return thanks for this surprise which you have prepared for mr. I am not conscious that I deserve this tribute of your respect, for if the Fire Department of this city has performed its duties satisfactorily and with lifelity to the interests of the city, it has alone been through the efficiency, promptness and courage of its members. Its differs simply reflected the wishes of those acting with them. I can truly say with much pleasure, and with a deep sense of my obligations to the Firemen generally, that I have ever received their hearty co-operation, and that I have always found them alice to the ar-duous duties of their station, active to preserve property, ready to assuage misery, and sympathete to the calls of those requiring their sympathy.

GENTLEMEN:—I shall treasure this memento of your regard and esteem as dearly as I hope to live in your kindest remembrances. May the sound of the trumpet never be heard except in the line o duty, and with a view to the preservation of order

Messrs. Brayton, May, Coe and Rouse, members of the Board of Un ierwriters, were called out and responded briefly. Many of the Fore on and officers were called for. They spoke, as firen. run, right to the point -Three hearty cheers were given for the worthy Chief, for the Fire Department, for the citizens of Cleveland, for Sargeant's Band, and for the Fire-

He paid a high ribute to the members of the department, warned them of taking a "horn" too much or too often, bu was sure his wife would not, when he went home last night, complain of his taking a horn too much. He could talk 'oud enough at a fire, but here his heart was too full.
